THE WASHINGTON CITT CANAL -The subjoined communication from Wm. Wise, Esq , Commissioner of the western section of the City Canal, addressed to the City Councils through one of its members, and which on being read in the Beard of Aldermen, was referred to the committee appointed to attend to the interests of the city before Congress, with instructions to bring the subject before the committees of Congress on Public Buildings and Grounds, contain some suggestive facts. Our opinion heretofore expressed, is that the Canal is a nuisance, which must sooner or later compel its being filled up or covered over, but as long as it exists there can he no doubt of the propriety of having it tho-Taughly dredged. We suppose not one in a hundred of the citizens of Washington are aware that the fith of the sewers emptied into the canal does not pass for the most part into the river, but is washed backwards and forwards along the line of the canal by the fides, and is thus continually stirred and shaken up for the benefit of the public nostril. We believe that Commissioner Wise has made some experiments, showing that light articles of the same density as the water, and therefore traveling with it, thrown into the canal, at say Four-and-a-balf street bridge, never pass into the river, but are caught by the return tide in the neighborhood of Fourteenth street bridge, and brought back to their starting place. This is rather a startling fact taken into connection with the knowledge that upon the introduction of Aqueduct water, the canal is to be made the receptacle of the fifth of all the privies and sinks of the city.

Should Congress make an appropriation for grading and filling up the low grounds south of the Capitol, the deposites dredged from the canal could be used advantageously for such filling. WASHINGTON, Jan. 39, 1859.

Mr. J. F. Brown, of Board of Aldermen : SIR : As chairman of the committee on drainage and sewerage, I beg leave to address you with respect to the amount of sediment that finds its way into the Washington City Canal from the sewers and drains of Washington. From the mouth of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to Third street west, the section of the c mal under my supervision is affected by every rain in consequence of the amount of deposit brought down the sewetc., of the city. The influx of the waters of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, in conjunction with the s wer on Seventeenth street drain ng the War Department, forms a large bar near the m uth of the city canal, unequalted by any except those formed by Tenth street sewer and Tiber C eek: and it has required constant attention during the last two years to keep the canal at all navigable at that point. The sewer at Sixteenth street draining the Presidential Mansion and grounds, as well as Reservation 1, forms the second bar on the north side of the canal The third bar, on the north side of the canal, formed from sew ers, is that at Fifteenth street, deposited from the sewer which drains the Treasury Department and part of Fifteenth street. The sewer at Fourteenth street, which drains Pennsylvania avenue from Fifteenth to Fourteenth street, deposits much sediment at the point of its entrance into the canal near Fourteenth street bridge. Thirteenth street sewer, which drains Thirteenth street from G to the canal, and Pennsylvania avenue for some distance, forms another large bar in the canal.

The sewer at Eleventh street, which drains a part of Pennsylvania avenue also, and the sewer at Tenth street, which drains Franklin square, ad a great amount of private property, are each sources of great deposite at the points of their entrance into the canal, the latter bringing in more sediment than any other sewer on the north side of the canal. The sewer running through Ninth street, draining the Post and Patent offices. is another source of heavy deposite, bringing in a great amount of sediment at every heavy rain. The sewer at Sixth street, which drains a part of Pennsylvania, and the three small sewers which drain the reservations north of the canal, between Third and Sixth streets, all effect to a great extent, the navigability of the canal. Tiber reek, which drains Judiciary Square and the buildings thereon, as well as the infi mary and jail, is a very heavy inlet to the canal, and the sediment deposited at this point affects the canel as far as Seventh street bridge. As I mentioned to you in a former report, the unfinished condition of its banks causes them to be undermined by the waters of the creek when they fail into the creek, and are swept by the next heavy rain into the canal. Alluding to this, the Commisstoner of Public Building, in his late report to the Secretary of the Interior, says : " The walls of Tiber creek are still down, and the banks have been very much washed and injured by the heavy rains in the spring and early part of last summer."

As the creek flows into the canal, it has necessarily been the receptacle of the washings from its banks. That part of the Mall between the canal and Seventh street which has been recently graded, drains into the canal at Sixth street, and deposits much material. Within the past year, the cesspool at that point, which holds twenty east loads of material, has been cleaned out four times, and it does not prevent one-fourth of the sediment that passes into it from being deposited into the capal. In the aforementioned report, the Commissioner of Public Buildings, alluding to the Mall, says: "The unprotected, newly graded surface of the Mall, has suffered from the rains serious damage, which will probably require from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars to make it good." If it would require such an app opriation to replace the material upon the Mall, it would also require a proportionally larger appropriation to remove the material from the bottom of the caual, where the greater part of it has been deposited. The Smithsonian grounds being in a somewhat finished condition, deposit less sediment than formerly, but the public reservation be tween Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, leaves a large amount at the mouths of the three sewers used for its drainage. All these streets interseeting the Mall south of the canal, viz : Fourand a half, Seventh, Twelfth, and Fourteenth streets, drain immediately into the canal. The sediment thus deposited in the canal from the sewers, in conjunction with that which is brought down the gutters, keeps it in an atmost unnavigable condition, notwithstanding the anmust expenditure of about $5,000 for the purpose of keeping the dredging machine in operation. I now beg leave, in consideration of the circum-stances above related of the drainage of all the public reservations, the State, War, Navy, and Freasury Departments, Presidential Mansion, Post and Patent Offices, Judiciary Square, Infimary, Capitol grounds, and Botanical Gardens, to suggest to you the propriety and expediency of asking of Congress a small appropriation for the purpose of defraying part of the expense annually incurred by our Corporation in dredging the canal. The canal is absolutely necessary for the drainage of Washington; and as all the property belonging to the Government, as well as that belonging to private individuals, drains into the canal, a little assistance might justly be asked for by our Corporation for removing this sediment-a neces-ary consequence of the d-alnage I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM WISE.

Commissioner western section canal Whose is it ?-Last Friday as a party of young men were out on a shooting expedition, they made a most singular discovery. Having occasion to pass through the old Catholic burial ground, just outside the city limits, they found a newly born infant lying on the frezen ground without a particle of clothing to shelter it from the frosty air. From indications, the little stranger had not been introduced into the world more than fifteen in nutes, having evidently been born in the grave-yard, and was nearly frozen to death. The unnatural mother had left thus early, with the heartless purpose, no doub', of permitting her offspring to perish. The hu-Gilman for assistance, and shortly afterward an old colored woman from the Doctor's house came with clothing and a backet, and carried the child home with her, where by means of brandy, both external and internal, it was resuscitated, and has been growing fustily ever since. The color is three parts white. The owner is lereby informed that there will be no extra charge should he or she see fit to step forward and claim prop-

WASHINGTON ART ASSOCIATION .- Hon. John Cochrane, of New York, lectures before this Association, this evening, at their Gallery on Pennsylvania avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. The lecture does not commence until half-past eight o'clock, giving a fine opportunity up to that time of viewing the splendid collection of paintings with which the wails of the Gallery are hung. This collection is said to be the fluest in America-consisting, as it does, of gems of art gathered from all parts of the country. It does, indeed, embrace many beautiful and life-like productions of genius, that every lover of art should see before the exhibition closes.

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT .- The National Washington Monument ought to be growing upward - when so extended an interest is taken in its progress by United States citizens residing abroad. The Monument has recently received an acquisition from Culna, in shape of a block of stone, inscribed as follows: "From the citizens of the United States of America, residing in Foo-Chew, Chew-Foo, China, Feb. 22d, 1857."

AN ACCOMPLISHED SWINDLES .- About a week ago, a good-looking, intelligent, and well-mannered German, in seedy costume and a very dirty shirt, calling himself Magnus Witherker, and stating that he was from New York city, made his appearance in Washington. He was very anxious to obtain some employment, and stated to Mr C. Bohn, book and print seller, that he had come to the District with letters of recommendation to a merchant in Georgetown, of whom he had expected to obtain a situation as clerk; but that on applying to him had found his expected clerkship filled by another party. He had no money, and appeared to be very much distressed at his unpleasant situation. Mr. Bohn Itking his appearance, gave him money to purchase a night's lodging, and requested him t call on him in the morning, promising to do something for him. The next morning the young min called, and after some further conversation with him Mr. Bohn gave him money to purchase a clean shirt, and promised him work. The young stranger appeared to feel very grateful for this kinduess, and seemed anxious to go to work as soon as possible. Accordingly, Mr Bohn gave him a specimen copy of a work which he had in hand shortly to be published, and sent him out to canvass. In two or three days be had obtained some twenty-five subscribers; and in the meantime, Mr. Bohn, to encourage his industry, paid him some six or seven dollars on account.

A few mornings since, he entered Mr Bohn's store, on Pennsylvania avenue, in the absence of the proprietor, and sobtained of the young m n in charge a dozen copies of the new work just from the press for delivery to the subscribers Since that time, he has not seen fit to return to account for his stewardship, though Mr. Bohn has ascertained that he delivered the copies to the subscribers and received the money for them, which money he probably appropriated towards his traveling expenses. Mr. Bohn has since learned that this young scamp, before leaving the city, exhibited his ilgotten cash to the barkeeper of the hotel where he boarded, and boasted that it was his regular trade to go about from one city to another and practice his swindling calling. He also told the burkeeper that he had played the same game successfully in New York, Philadelphia and Baitimore, and that he was now going probably to Richmond to try it on there. At his boarding house he exemplified his adroitness at swindling by leaving his board bill unpaid, and by carry ing off a valuable knife which he had sold to the barkeeper and received pay for. Our neighboring cities would do well to keep a sharp look out for Mr. Magnus Witherker, should be do any of them the honor to give them a call. Doubtless if he has gone to Richmond, he has laid his plans to make a good thrifty business capital out of his obsequious manner and seedy coat

WHO ESTABLISHED CHEAP OMNIBUSES IN WASHINGTON ?- By the debate in the Councils, at their last meeting, given in yesterday's Star, it will be seen that some of the members did Mr. Vanderwerken great injustice, in representing that to others than himself was due the credit of establishing cheap and comfortable omnibuses. We supposed that every man, woman and child in Washington knew that, to the energy, perseverance, and business-like capabilities of one man-Gilbert Vanderwerken-they are indebted for the cheap yet most comfortable facilities of conveyance now enjoyed by them. The history of emnibus lines in this city is in brief as fellows :

In November, 1819, Mr. Vanderwerken, assotiated with Newell & Russel, established the line of omnibuses. About this time, Mr. Thos. Fitnam purchased two coaches from Vanderwerken, and ran in competition for two or three months, when he sold his stock and two coaches to Vanderwerken. In February, 1850, Mr. Vanderwerken purchased the interest of Messrs. Newell & Russell. and continued on his own account. In March, 1850, Reeside took charge for Vanderwerken and afterward was associated with him for a time. In December, 1850, Mr. Vanderwerken moved to the District to look after his own interests, and in October, 1851, Reeside withdrew and Vandertinued the b his own account Since Mr Vanderwerken started the line, various lines have been started in competition, but have been withdrawn. This is the plain record of the case, and shows sufficiently to whom "honor is due "

PSHAW ! - The localizer of the Richmond Enquirer alludes to a matter which has caused some scandal lately in the fashionable world of Richmond and Washington. Not long since a very prepossessing young lady was escorted hither. under an assumed name, from Washington city. An affaire d'amour with a distinguished polit cian in that capital, led to a responsibility that both parties thought had better be removed from Washington. The fair one came hither, and soon a bright little baby laid a claim upon Richmond as its birth-place, but had an extra claim claim on Washington for its papa. A confidential servant, well known as "Dick Judah," was sent on by the parent to at end to the lady and child. The latter was nabbed by the police, on a charge of "going at large," but let off on Tuesday on showing his right to do so. Who the hero and heroine of the fashionable faur pas may be, is left to the world to guess; but so far the matter comes under the head of " all is well that ends well."-Richmond Dispatch.

THE THEATRE .- The new comedy of " Wait ing for a Wife," written by John Savage, Esq., of this city, was well received last night, by an ordinary-sized audience. The plot of the comedy is the wooing and winning of a New York belle by a poor, but gallant and honest-hearted Irishman, in spite of the opposition of parents and the suit of a stupid sprig of aristocracy. At the same time that he buffles all opposition, he triumphs over poverty by a windfall from the old country. At the conclusion of the piece, the author being loudly called for, he appeared in one of the private boxes and gracefully thanked the audience for the kind reception they had given his effort to entertain them. The piece is a very decided success. For performance, to-night, see advertisement

COURT OF CLAIMS, YESTERDAY -J. F. Polk vs. the United States. The claimant, while chief clerk in the Second Auditor's Bureau, was appointed to perform the Second Anditor's duties ad interim, and in this suit seeks to obtain the salary of the Auditor while performing his duties in addition to that of chief clerk. The claimant opened the argument. Mr Ratcliff replied in behalf of the government. The claimant closed and the case was submitted.

Asbury W. Kish, administrator, vs. the Uni ted States. Mr. Polk opened the argument in behalf of the claimant. Mr. Gillet replied, and the court adjourned.

A FINE TURNOUT .- Mr. Thomas Fisher, at McGuire & Co.'s auction store, is authorized to sell a match of gray horses, which are as stylish and serviceable as any other pair of horses now in this city. They were matched by a gentleman thoroughly versed in horse flesh, for his own use, but circumstances prevent bim from keeping them. Their style is very fine, and their action matches their style capitally. As they will be sold at a great sacrifice, it will be well for those in want of a very fine pair of matched carriage horses to apply to Mr. Fisher at once.

THE RUSSIAN WAR AT ODD FELLOWS' HALL Our lady readers and the juvenile portion of our community, will be delighted to hear that the great Dioramas will be exhibited to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, for their especial convenience. On last Saturday afternoon, Odd Feliows' Hall was througed with ladies and the display of beautiful faces in front of the custain, rivailed the attractions of the superb exhibition back of it. We predict a rush for tomorrow. The usual exhibition takes place this and to-morrow nights at 7% o'clock.

CIRCUIT COURT -The jury in the case of Stew. art agt. Naylor, after remaining shut up twentyfour hours without being able to agree upon a verdict, were yesterday discharged by the Court with the consent of the counsel on both sides. The case of J. W. Watt use of Cook & Johnson agt. Taliaferro Hunter was taken up, and occupied the Court during the day. This morning, the same case was resumed.

THE quality of the Wines and Liquors, advertised to be sold at the auction room of C. W. Boteler, Iron Hall, on Saturday morning, commencing at 10 o'clock may be relied on as represented, they having been selected for a fine trade here, and are sold because Messrs. Shekeil & Miller desire to convert their value in a stock more staple here. The sale is peremptory.

MR. EGGENE A. GAOUX, the man with the visible heart, is to lecture, to-night, at the Smithsonian, demonstrating upon his own person certain motions of the heart, large arteries, and lungs. Gentlemen only admitted.

MADAME JESSE WHITE MARIO, a woman of great talent, and who has had large personal experience, as all readers of the European revolutionary history of the day are aware with that history, will lecture to-morrow evening on the war prospects of Europe in 1859. The theme is one to impart inspiration, peculiarly to her whose husband is himself a refugee, and the attached personal friend of Mazzini, to whom the profits of his wife's lectures are sent for the benefit of the Italian cause. That cause is dear to the lovers of freedom of every land, but especially dear to those of ours, which is looked to abroad as the home of freedom. We have no doubt that under such a banner we will see a large audience enlisted on Saturday night.

CHARGED WITH SELLING OB:CENE BOOKS .-Yesterday, Alfred Hunter, Chas. S. Shepherd and Patrick Collins were arrested for selling obscene books on the public streets. The case was laid before Justice Donn, who held Hunter to bail in five hundred dollars for his appearance at Court, and committed Shepherd and Collins to jail. This morning Shepherd was released on bail, Mr. G. W. Wren becoming his security.

[ADVERTISEMENT. "Is DAWSON DEAD ?"-To the Editor of the Star: Since the death of William Patterson, the town has had nothing to puzzle its ingenuity like the above question; and as I am a lover of true history, I appeal to you to satisfy my curiosity. In a particularly friendly notice of Lanman's "Dictionary of Congress," (a book which every body seems to be talking about, but which I have been unable to purchase,) published in the "States" newspaper, it is asserted. on the authority of Lanman, that the Hon. John L Dawson is dead, while the Editor remarks that he is not. The testimony of Messrs. Helss & Pryor cannot be doubted, and yet the assertion quoted from the Dictionary seems to be corrobo rated by the subjoined notice which I find in a volume of 432 pages, published in Boston by Hon. Nathan Crosby, and entitled "Annual Obituary Notices of Eminent Persons, who died in the U. S. in 1857."

"Dawson, Hor. John L. Brownsville, Pa. March 10, 1857; from 1851 to 1855, representative in Congress from Pennsylvania. It is said, he was one of the victims of the National Hotel disease, and that twenty-seven persons died of that complaint, and that many other persons remain in a state of decrepitude."

Now, the question is, is Mr. Dawson dead or only in a "state of decrepitude?" The Boston book proposes to speak of "emineat persons; and we all know that Lanman's Dictionary devoted merely to members of Congress. What beg you tell me, is the truth? Were there tw Dawsons in Congress bearing the same name? and if so, which of the two was an "eminent person?" If the friends of the "States" Dawson "made believe" that he was dead for the purpose of obtaining a "first rate" notice, they made a great mistake in not posting up Mr. Crosby; and if a man of genius he might have been treated as was the good name of Albert Pike, a few weeks ago, when the telegraph told a false hood about his death.

With regard to the friendship which Mr. Heiss seems to entertain for Mr Lanman, I have nothing to say, only that it is evidently allied to that which he entertains for nine-tenths of the human family; and the affection of the associate editor. or "critic of the States," has a habit of oozing out after the same manner. But if you would like to witness the appearance of a delicate sting. when nestled in the words of "injured inno cence," I invite you to read a certain little "card" which has been circulated about town. In the meantime, tell me, if you can, "is Dawson dead." As all the gentlemen who figure in Lanman's Dictionary are supposed to be candidates for the Presidency, it is important to know whether they are dead or alive. Yours truly,
